

What to Wear this Fall

AMERICA'S pre-eminent Fashion Artists present to you their most beautiful designs and most authoritative styles in the new Wooltex Suits and Coats.

As The Store That Sells Wooltex in this city, it is our pleasure to bring these new fashions direct to you. They are charming; they are beautiful; they are refined; they are becoming; they are correct.

Such a collection of authoritative styles in tailored suits and coats is made possible only by the concentrated efforts of artists who, as individuals, represent the best thought of the fashion centers of the world.

The best artistic skill of Paris, London, Vienna, New York and Cleveland is represented in these designs, all of which have received the approval of Madame Savarie, director of the Wooltex Fashion Bureau in Paris.

Here are the correct style features to look for when you choose your tailored suit or coat for fall and winter.

To be correctly dressed, your tailored suit must show the lines of the natural figure—not tight-fitting, but with graceful curves.

Stylish Jacket Features

Most suit jackets are hip length, though slightly longer ones are also in style. Fur and velvet on collar, cuffs and lower edge is especially modish. The collars are wide, to be worn close about the neck or flat, with wide revers to correspond.

Skirts Have Plaits

Skirts are moderately full—two to two-and-one-half yards. The fullness is laid in soft rolling or closely pressed plaits.

Coats With Graceful In-curve

Coats have a graceful in-curve at the back, with full flaring skirts. Many handsome new models are big and loose, some being loosely belted to give the modish flaring outline effect.

WOOLTEX Tailored Suits and Coats embody all these authoritative style features. And to their stylish beauty are added the well known superiorities of Wooltex materials and Wooltex tailoring.

Give yourself the pleasure of seeing these new fall styles now. Try them on, if you wish. See how becoming and graceful the new modes are. Choose your suit or coat now. Have the pleasure of being stylishly and handsomely dressed throughout the fall season.

Suits at $25 to $65
Coats at $16.50 to $45

LETTER FROM WILL SULLIVAN

Salt Lake City,

September 14 1915.

Mr. C. F. Brown, Alma, Michigan,

Dear Charlie:

At present we are in Salt Lake City, but tomorrow we will start for Frisco. On Monday the 5th we started out and drove through the mountains all the week. At first we went to Leadville and on over the Tennessee Pass, which is the Continental Divide, ten thousand two hundred seventy-six feet above the sea level and down to Red Cliff. From there we went up Battle Eagle river. In the valley we camped for the night. On the top of this mountain is a little town called Gilman, near which is the largest and richest zinc mine in Colorado.

You may gain some idea of the steepness of this mountain by the fact that in three quarters of a mile there is a rise of two thousand feet. However, we went up this hill like a shot and at that didn't need all the power our Studebaker could give us. The trip down the mountain was something else again. We used both brakes run in low, with the switch off. The joke of it was that it took longer to come down than it did to go up.

After leaving Red Cliff and the mountain we struck some pretty rough country until we came to the Grand Canyon. That was a wonderful sight. The play of colors in the sunlight and the gorgeous scenery on the top combined to impress the sightseer with unusual force. On one side of the river the railroad tracks run and on the other the wagon road. Bowling along on the latter we seemed at times to be on a very level with the surface of the river and at other times hundreds of feet above it. Power companies utilize the water power to a good advantage, sluices carrying the torrents to a lower level where the machinery is driven.

At one place we came to a place where convicts were blasting a road twenty-four feet wide out of solid rock. When we reached this road we certainly drove along at a good speed. There were six or seven miles of this sort of road leading into Glenwood Springs. We passed through the Springs, Rifle and Meeks where we took the road into the Great American Desert. A continual procession of washes and gullies for forty miles hindered us considerable and forced us to travel between six and ten miles per hour. Neither tree nor house nor anything that has green did we see until we came to a watering place. For many stretches of miles the bare rock showed at the surface alternating with long stretches of clay and sand. We reached Ranch about 11 o'clock and from there drove to Vernal through some excellent farming country. Here we ate dinner. During the afternoon we passed through the Vintah Basin, a region of fine farms, made so by irrigation, and came to Fort Duchesse. This fort has been abandoned except as the Ute Indians occupy it for their camping grounds. We drove around the buildings but, of course Charlie, we didn't spend much time visiting with the Indians, as it was getting late in the evening. The next morning we crossed what they call a "hill" in this country. It was some hill. For four miles there was seventeen per cent. grade. The road was very heavy with a black clay which stuck to our wheels like a long lost brother. On the way down after dinner we passed several covered wagons drawn by teams of from two to eight horses. They were having a pretty hard time of it too. Their loads consisted of freight for the towns up the hill.

We spent all that forenoon going thirty-one miles down the mountain-side "hillsides," these people would call it. After dinner we made up for lost time however and soon reached Cotton, where we camped for the evening. We started for Salt Lake City Sunday morning.

Around Cotton there are several sheep ranches. On the climb up Solders Mountain we encountered a storm and the going was rather slippery; but from there on the roads were fine and we averaged over thirty miles an hour.

About five o'clock we reached this city and camped out in Liberty Park. We had lots of company for there were a large number of campers there some of them from Michigan.

I hope everything at Alma is alright and I want to say right here that I haven't struck anything that can come up to old Michigan yet.

Yours very truly,
Wm. C. Sullivan.

Field Marshals.

The "baton" borne by generals in the French armies and by the marshals of other nations is emblematic purely—simply a mark of their office. The title of "field marshal" is not known in the United States army.
